A Humorous Look at Personal and Professional Success

Motivational Speaker
Michael Broome

at

Quonset "O" Club, North Kingstown, RI

on

Thursday September 12, 2019

Since 1979 Michael Broome has addressed over 3,500 audiences throughout the world. Michael chose the speaking profession because of his passion to inspire people to maximize their potential, be servant-leaders and achieve a life balance. His commitment to training is demonstrated by the Broyhill Leadership Conferences of which he is founder and president. Over 30,000 participants from throughout North America have attended these weeklong conferences where they are taught the principles of achievement.

He has addressed events as diverse as The Million Dollar Round Table, a Congressional Dinner, and an Annual Goat-Dipping. Michael says his presentations are like baths – the effect may not last forever but everybody needs one.

Forty percent of Michael's audiences are from the ranks of management; forty percent are sales professionals; and the remainder runs the gamut from prison felons to the Girl Scouts. Having shared the podium with noted speakers and celebrities, he has only been upstaged by an orangutan. His talks are punctuated with applause, laughter and an occasional "Amen." When asked if humor is necessary in a speech, Michael replied, "It is for me if I want to be paid."

In his book, Be a Liver of Life, Not a Gallbladder, he sums up his philosophy:
"The ultimate success is when our life overflows with things that money cannot buy."
(Each attendee will receive a paperback copy of this book.)
