Facilitated by Meredith Kyle

January 7, 2025 | 4:00 p.m. – 6:00 p.m. | EB Groton, Bldg. 221

Have you ever felt like you are as smart as other individuals in the room? Do you feel like you are pretending that you are knowledgeable about a subject and you feel like you are nowhere close to being the SME? Do you tend to have a lot of self-doubt while in team meetings? A lot of people in different stages in their careers are subject to feelings of inadequacy and self-doubt, known as imposter syndrome.

After attending this workshop, you will be able to:

- Define imposter syndrome and its effects
- Understand and define a growth mindset and how you can cultivate it within yourself
- Identify the presence of imposter syndrome in yourself
- Develop a toolbox of techniques for coping and combating imposter syndrome in order to feel more successful in work and life
- How cultivating a growth mindset can help you overcome imposter syndrome
